

Travel fellowships for South American researchers

Société des Neurosciences / IBRO WERC

(Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay)

The French Neuroscience Society, jointly with the Western Europe Regional Committee of IBRO (IBRO WERC), offer travel fellowships of EUR 1,600 each to young South American researchers willing to attend the Alfred Fessard colloquium (Paris, May 2012) and to visit French laboratories to find a post-doctoral position in France.

The candidates must currently live in Argentina, Brazil, Chile or Uruguay. They must be advanced students in their last year of their PhD program or young non-tenured researchers having obtained their PhD degree in the field of Neuroscience, in the last two years.

Previous to their arrival in France, the applicants are requested to contact at least two French laboratories for visiting appointments.

The award payment is contingent upon proof of attendance at the colloquium and confirmation of visiting appointments by the French laboratories.

Application procedure:

Candidates should send their application via e-mail to the secretariat of the French Neuroscience Society: info@societe-neurosciences.fr

The following materials must be attached (please use Pdf files):

- A curriculum vitae in English (or French) which should include: the research interests, the provisional or effective year of defense and title of the thesis, publications, congresses/workshops/courses attended indicating presentation type (oral or poster), prizes and grants received as well as current position
- A personal motivation letter and supervisor recommendation letter
- A copy of the confirmation of visiting appointments by French laboratories.

Deadline for application: January 31, 2012
